INTRODUCTION.

The Royal Commission on Historical Manuscripts was first appointed in 1869. It exists in order to inquire what papers and manuscripts belonging to private families and institutions are extant which will be of utility in the illustration of history, constitutional law, science, and general literature, and to which possessors will be willing to give access. Its first Report was issued as a Parliamentary Paper in the early part of 1870. This contained a summary account of the operations carried on through its agency until the time of issue, with an Appendix in which are set out the results of the examination of collections of manuscripts by the Inspectors employed, then five in number. In form and style the volume thus issued was that of the parliamentary "blue book," a folio in double columns, a form and style which were followed by succeeding reports up to and including the Ninth Report, in three parts, issued in 1883-1884. As will be seen by the detailed list on pp. 1-7 of this volume, the collections so far noticed were very numerous. The Inspector's Report on each collection is in many instances merely a rapid survey of the ground, detail, where it occurs, being, with some exceptions, casual and in the nature of an exhibition of specimens.

Even before the year 1885, however, when the Tenth Report of the Commissioners appeared, the work of the Commission had come to be better organised, and from this date onwards it is necessary to distinguish between the Reports of the Commissioners and the Reports of the Inspectors. The former, as hitherto, stated in a general way what had been done under the direction of the Commissioners in the interval since their last Report; the latter contained the results in detail of the work of the Inspectors. It had by this time become evidently necessary in many cases to devote the whole of a volume to one collection, and sometimes more than one volume.

In form, too, the volumes, both of the Reports of the Commissioners and of the Reports of Inspectors, underwent a change. While still remaining "parliamentary papers," they became octavo volumes in buff paper covers, and have so continued until the present (see pp. 8-14).

This separate treatment and form had already been applied to one great and important collection, that of the Cecil manuscripts at Hatfield, belonging to the Marquess of Salisbury, the Report on which at the present moment has grown to twelve parts or volumes, and is still in progress (pp. 7-8).

After the issue of the Fifteenth Report of the Commissioners another change is to be marked. Hitherto, although in separate volumes, the Reports of the Inspectors were nominally appendices to the successive Reports of the Commissioners. Hence it frequently happened that the several parts of an Inspector's Report on one and the same collection of manuscripts were issued as appendices to different Reports of the Commissioners. For example, the first volume of the Report on the Manuscripts of the Earl of Charlemont is Appendix X. to the Twelfth Report of the Commissioners; while the second volume is Appendix VIII. to the Thirteenth Report. This arrangement was presently seen to have no advantage whatever, and was brought to an end. Thenceforward, the Report of the Inspector either has for its title the name of the owner of the collection, or in the case of short reports, is combined with others, in the series of "Reports on Various Collections," now extending to eight volumes.

A certain perplexity has arisen with regard to the arrangement of the Reports from the circumstances connected with their manner of issue, altered from time to time, as explained above, in so much that it has been difficult to place them on the shelves in a logical and useful order. For example, if the Reports on the Manuscripts of the Earl of Dartmouth (p. 9) or of the Duke of Portland (p. 10) are put in the order of report and appendix, as they naturally would be, the different parts of the Report will be found widely separated on the shelves. They are, moreover, when arranged in this way difficult to lay hands on. A scheme of arrangement of volumes therefore is offered and recommended for adoption, which is indicated by the clarendon numbering on pp. 1-14, and if this is accepted and the volumes numbered and arranged accordingly, difficulties of consultation should disappear, and the different parts or volumes of a Report be brought together. A second or third part of a Report will bear the same number as the first and follow it on the library shelf. Each "Various Collections" volume will become an additional No. 55. An entirely new self-contained Report will have a new number.

A glance at p. 15 will tell the student what is the number on the shelf of the Report to which he is referred herein.

It remains to offer some explanations, directions, and cautions with regard to the contents and use of the main section of this "Guide" contained on pp. 16-233.

In the first place, this part of the "Guide" is confined to topographical entries. Entries relating to persons and matters will form Part II., with which some progress has already been made.

Secondly, it must be understood that it is not exhaustive in the sense that every single name to be found in the several indexes concerned will re-appear here. This is a first attempt to accomplish a task of some magnitude, and consequently, some undesired omissions will no doubt be noted, especially perhaps as regards the earlier Reports. On the other hand, it is hoped that the majority of names of any importance do appear, whilst the entries under certain titles are as complete as they can be made. It will not be difficult to make good in a future edition what may be lacking in this.

Thirdly, only such Reports as are contained in the detailed list on pp. 1-14 are included. Reports issued subsequently, of which a short account is given below (pp. vi.-ix.), are entirely omitted.

In general, it must be taken into account that the indexes to the respective Reports to which the student is herein referred, numbering about one hundred and fifty, have been compiled over a long series of years, by a good many persons who have necessarily differed in their methods of executing the extremely difficult task of intelligently, succinctly, and adequately indexing a volume, and who for a considerable part of the period were without such definite and considered instructions as it has since been found possible to lay down. Moreover, even with the fullest instructions, diversities must arise, and, furthermore, some variation of treatment is due to discretion, a certain amount of which must be allowed to an indexer. Some peculiar difficulties were consequently met with when dealing with these different indexes as a whole. Here, in the "Guide," the modern name has been for the most part taken as the starting point, to which variants as found in the Reports are added. But it will not always happen that the modern name is itself found in the Report referred to. In that case, and indeed generally, it will be necessary to look for one of the variants, and, it may be, for more than one; for, in the earlier Reports particularly, the variants have not always been brought together,* and sometimes no attempt whatever has been originally made to identify the place mentioned, which may appear in both text and index of the Report under extraordinary forms. In so far as it has been possible such omission has been made good in this "Guide," but there have been cases where identification, for one reason or another, has not been possible without danger of mistake, or the pursuit of the true name has not been worth the expenditure of time and trouble which was necessary for success. The student must then do the work for himself.

Attention may usefully be drawn here to the notes at foot of pp. 1-14. If the explanations there made are attended to, the student will be spared some possible difficulties when he is consulting the Reports.

It will be perceived that some collections of manuscripts have been done twice, the first time summarily, the second time more in detail. Although references may be given to both the earlier and the later reports, obviously, the second and more detailed report is that which should be relied upon where the same ground is covered. In the majority of cases where two such reports exist, the earlier may safely be neglected.

* For example, in one and the same index there are references under "England, Borders of" and "Borders"; in another under "Caius College" and "Gonville and Caius College."

In conclusion, due acknowledgment must be made of the material assistance given by those without whose collaboration even this the shorter of the two parts of the "Guide" could not have been so soon produced. Miss Ethel Lomas and Miss Ethel George prepared the bulk of the slips containing the names from the several indexes and preliminarily arranged them. In the later stages of preparation and in passing the volume through the press, I have had the assistance of Mr. A. Hallam Roberts, B.A.

It extends from March 25, 1683, to July, 1688, and concludes the correspondence of the first Duke of Ormonde, more than half the volume being concerned with the last two years of his third term as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, the remaining pages carrying the correspondence down to his death, and containing extracts from inventories of his furniture, plate and pictures, and a catalogue of his books. Topographically, it refers chiefly to Ireland, but there are also references to the Plantations in America, Brecon, Bristol, Brussels, Buda, Chester (city and county), Derby, France, Germany, the Hague, Hampton Court, Heidelberg, Holland, Hungary, London, Luxembourg, Isle of Man, Newmarket, Oxford University and Colleges, Scotland, Spain, Tangier, Turkey, Vienna, Westminster Hall and School, Whitehall, Winchester, and Windsor.

THE HISTORICAL MANUSCRIPTS COMMISSION.

PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE,
CHANCERY LANE,
LONDON, W.C.

CERTAIN COMMISSIONERS were appointed by Queen Victoria in 1869 to enquire as to the existence of unpublished manuscripts in the possession of private persons and in institutions, calculated to throw light on the Civil, Ecclesiastical, Literary, or Scientific History of the Empire. The Commission has been renewed by the late King and by H.M. King George, and new Commissioners have been appointed from time to time to fill vacancies that have occurred.

The present Commissioners are :—

Sir Herbert H. Cozens-Hardy, Master of the Rolls (Chairman), the Earl of Crawford, the Earl of Rosebery, K.G., the Earl of Dartmouth, Lord Fitzmaurice, Lord Alverstone, K.C.M.G., Lord Lindley, Lord Morley of Blackburn, O.M., Lord Mostyn, Sir Edward Fry, Sir H. C. Maxwell-Lyte, K.C.B., Sir P. G. Kenyon, K.C.B., Professor Firth, M.A., LL.D., Mr. James Mills, I.S.O., and Mr. R. A. Roberts.

With the object of securing the co-operation of the owners of manuscripts, without which their work could not be carried on, the Commissioners think it desirable to describe the system upon which they conduct their enquiries.

If the owner of any collection of manuscript books or documents express his willingness to submit them to the Commissioners, an inspection is made under their direction by some competent and trustworthy person, and if any of the manuscripts appear to come within the scope of their enquiry, the owner is asked to consent to the publication of copies or abstracts of them in the reports of the Commission presented to Parliament.

The object of the Commission being the discovery of unpublished historical and literary materials, attention is directed to that object exclusively, and owners of manuscripts need be under no apprehension that the examination of papers by the Commission may mean in any way a prying into private affairs. Positive directions are given by the Commissioners to every person who inspects manuscripts on their behalf that nothing that affects the titles of existing owners is to be divulged, and that, if in the course of his work any modern title-deeds or papers of a private nature chance to come before him, he is to put them aside at once without examination or note.

To emphasize more strongly the confidential nature of his task, every person employed by the Commission to inspect a collection of documents is required to consider it a condition of his employment that all notes made by him in the course of such employment are to be regarded as the property of the Commission, and that he is not at liberty to use in any way any information obtained from papers submitted to the Commissioners without their permission: this is never given without the express consent of the owners of the papers.

In practice it has been found expedient, in dealing with a large collection of manuscripts, for the inspector to make a selection therefrom and to obtain the owner's consent to the removal of the selected papers for a time to the Public Record Office in London or in Dublin, or to the General Register House in Edinburgh, where they can be dealt with more easily, and where they are treated with the same care as the muniments of the realm, whose place of deposit they temporarily share.

The whole cost of inspections, reports, and calendars, and the conveyance of documents is defrayed at the public expense.

Among the numerous owners of valuable documents who have given their sanction to the temporary removal of manuscripts by the Commission may be named:—His Majesty the King, the Duke of Rutland, the Duke of Portland, the Duke of Buccleuch, the Marquess of Salisbury, the Marquess of Ormonde, the Marquess Townshend, the Marquess of Bath, the Earl of Dartmouth, the Earl of Carlisle, the Earl of Egmont, Lord Kenyon, Lord Sackville, Mrs. Stopford Sackville, Sir George Wombwell, Mr. le Fleming, of Rydal, Mr. Fortescue, of Dropmore, and Mr. Rawdon Hastings, of Ashby de la Zouche.

The work of the Commissioners, with the liberal-minded co-operation of many owners of manuscripts, has resulted so far in the publication of more than a hundred and fifty volumes of previously unprinted historical materials.

The Commissioners also regard it as part of their duty to be ready to give advice as to the housing and keeping of valuable papers, and the repair of any that may be in a state of decay.

A. E. STAMP,
Secretary.
